FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

IAPD Welcomes New Member US Cast, Inc.

OVERLAND PARK, Kans. – The International Association of Plastics Distribution is pleased to announce that US Cast, Inc., a manufacturer, has joined the association. The company's headquarters is located in a 30,000 square foot facility in Pittsgrove, NJ, USA. They specialize in cast acrylic products and are proud of being an American-based, environmentally friendly manufacturer. US Cast, Inc. was founded by World War II veteran Albert O'Brien in 1954, who created proprietary formulations and his own machinery while building the business. Sixty years later, his sister is continuing his legacy and the family tradition at the company, with an emphasis on a belief in the community and the American way. More information is available at www.uscast.net.

"I am pleased to welcome US Cast, Inc. as a new IAPD member," said IAPD CEO Susan E. Avery, CAE. "IAPD represents the plastics distribution supply chain and, most importantly, champions the use of plastics in applications and the use of distribution as the way to market. Companies who are admitted to IAPD as full members of the association must evidence their commitment to the plastics distribution supply chain. The association will be their essential source for networking, training tools, education, information and insight. Through IAPD, they will have access to the thought leaders in the plastics distribution industry."

"US Cast, Inc. is the oldest, little-known, but highly respected American manufacturer of clear cast acrylic rods and tubes," said Paul Baron, general manager of customer relations for US Cast, Inc. "After decades of outsourced sales representation, US Cast, Inc. is pleased to now offer direct support and sales to its distributors, most of whom are all active IAPD members. US Cast, Inc. looks forward to also supporting IAPD, participating in and benefiting from its resources, educational programs and industry events."
